way
to
egress

It may have been P.T. Barnum (of circus fame), or another similar entrepreneur, who set up a menagerie (the only way most people of the 19th century got to see exotic animals) with his circus. One of the signs, halfway through, said "This way to Egress". Folks following it, to see the Amazing Egress, found themselves outside, having to pay again to re-enter. Assateague is a haven for egrets, and related waders, of many kinds (here, Great Egrets). Ok, here we go...this way to egress...
