

Sultana: Annapolis to
St. Michaels

Me, Amber and Capt Bob... I learned a bit more about helming with a tiller (and that I probably need glasses...)

Making a black powder charge for Sultana's swivel guns (using some anachronistic gear: Scotch Tape and foil). (Clockwise from top left). Handmade bilge pump is visible in first photo. In the 1768 Sultana's Atlantic crossing, the bilge pumps were impossible to work due to the immense seas crashing over the decks.

one camera shot can't encompass a tall ship's scale: I resort to montage shots, pieced together from several photos ospreys...and ducks... on the channel markers

yeah... but our ship's cooler...

can't fit the whole rig in one shot...

Sultana casts a long shadow...
